Reflection On Bible Reading Luke 12:13-21 Jesus is not against being prudence. The man in Jesus' parable, however, does not act out of prudence, but greed. He stores everything that his land produces, even the excesses that he definitely does not need to survive! He has no other motivation but his own self-preservation and self-indulgence. Just like many today, the man in Jesus' parable has mistakenly hoped that his anxious and troubled soul can find everlasting rest in his material possession. But our soul will never find its rest in material possession. No. Our soul will find rest only when we come to the realization that we are not created to live as separated entities; that we are indelibly linked to one another; that we are all responsible for one another's wellbeing; that others-especially those lacking in basic necessities—also have divinely sanctified claims on what we possess. Only when we truly understand this that our soul can truly find its rest and we can understand what being rich in God is all about. (Rev. Toby Keva)
