God's Love and Hope in Action

Reflection On Bible Luke 16:1-13

The manager in Jesus' parable is not a good man. Some, however, argue that he is actually helping others by cutting the amount of debts that they owe. But, regardless of the positive impacts that his shrewd action creates, he is still a dishonest man. His action is born not out of selfless intention, but out of selfish motivation. He dishonestly cuts the debts to win the debtors' favours. He helps the wealthy debtors so that he will have social connections to fall into after he finishes his current job. But, here is the point that Jesus makes: Jesus laments the fact that the "children of this age", like this dishonest manager, know how to act shrewdly to get what they want. The "children of light", however, often lacks the imagination in their pursuit of a good cause. The "children of this age" those who worship wealth—are driven mainly by selfishness; yet, their selfish motivation enables them to be innovative in pursuing their goal, no matter how twisted that goal is. The "children of light"—the worshippers of the one true God—on the other hand, often lack similar drive to fulfil their honest intention! This is quite a harsh, yet necessary reminder that we, as followers of Jesus, need to pay attention to. (Rev. Toby Keva)
